

Meet the Staff

RONNIE DETRICH, PH.D.

Scientific Consultant

Ronnie Detrich is currently a senior fellow at the Wing Institute, a relatively new nonprofit organization in Oakland, California, with the mission of promoting evidence-based practices in education.

Prior to coming to the Wing Institute, Dr. Detrich spent over 30 years delivering evidence-based interventions in educational settings. Most recently, he served as the clinical director of a large non-profit, private special education school for children with serious educational and behavioral challenges and codirected a large public school consultation project. He has also served as director for a residential/educational program for children with autism and director of a program for adolescent status offenders.

Dr. Detrich's current interest in evidence-based education is in the large-scale implementation of effective interventions in typical service settings. He is also interested in issues of effective staff training and practical methods for assessing and assuring high levels of treatment integrity. He has authored several papers on issues related to evidence-based practice in school settings in the last few years.
