CAROLYN VINCENT

Carolyn Vincent is vice president of RMC Research Corporation's Arlington, Virginia, office. She has over 20 years of experience as a senior project director, technical assistance provider, and program evaluator. She began her career as a teacher of English as a second language (ESL) in the District of Columbia Public Schools, and has worked on contracts providing technical assistance supporting federal education programs and reforms since 1993. Highlights of her career include extensive experience with Regional Comprehensive Center work; developing material for the Doing What Works initiative, one of the U.S. Department of Education's premier research-to-practice resources; and leadership of a national project focusing on sustainability of the Reading First program.
